

MEMBERS PERMISSION TO REPRODUCE CFPA Europe's PUBLICATIONS

In accordance with the CFPA Europe's Statutes, Article 13.2, members A1, A2, B1, B2, and GM are all authorized to reproduce CFPA Europe's publications. This means the members have the right to translate and print CFPA Europe's Guidelines in their own country. This permission permits means:

1. A CFPA Europe guideline can be translated to the language/languages that are used in the member's country,
2. The ownership of the guideline remains with the CFPA Europe. Any intellectual property derived or produced in the original publication in the original language, remain the property of CFPA Europe,
3. Translated guidelines can be published in the members publication series, but on the front page or in the foreword, it must be stated that the publication is a translation of CFPA Europe's Guideline, with title, number, year, and CFPA Europe's logo and printed with the approval and kind permission of the CFPA Europe,
4. The document template can be the members template, and does not need to follow CFPA Europe's guideline document template,
5. An individual section or parts of a Guideline may be reproduced in whole or in part in another publication issued by the member, however always in the right context and with reference to the current Guideline, as stated and in accordance with the requirement in Paragraph 2,
6. In case of any disagreement about the meaning of a recommendation, guideline, or something similar, the CFPA Europe's English version applies.
7. The member has the right to sell and charge for reproduced Guidelines,
8. For financing reproductions, members can use sponsors, but it must clearly state that any sponsor or sponsors have only contributed towards translation and printing. The requirements in Paragraph 2 also apply so that the origin of the content or information is clearly stated,
9. It is the member's responsibility to ensure that reproduced guidelines are always the latest version of CFPA Europe's guideline.

These rules has been determined by the CFPA Europe's Management Committee in March 2023